KIDNAP CHAINS

Herbert K. Hyde, chief prosecutor in the trial of Harvey Bailey, at Oklahoma City, for the kidnaping of Charles Urschel, oil magnate, exhibits the chain with which Urschel was tied up during his period of captivity. It was found at the Shannon farm in Texas, where Bailey was captured. (International News photo).

MOVE FAILS TO FREE PRISONER

Judge Overrules Demurrer of Bates in Urschel Kidnaping Case.

LEGION AID IS SOUGHT

Ex-Service Men Urged To Join in Search for Gang's Machine Gunner.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Sept. 23—Judge Edgar S. Vaught overruled the first defense demurrer interposed in the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping case as court opened today.

It was the contention of Ben Laska, Denver attorney for Albert Bates, that the prosecution had not established the fact that the oil man had been moved from Oklahoma City to Texas and held captive.

Laska previously had said out of court he knew he had no real chance for the directed verdict of acquittal he asked.

"But I had to make the gesture," he told newsmen.

Bates was named in the government testimony as one of the actual kidnapers.

Legion Aid Urged

Meanwhile, members of all American Legion posts in Oklahoma were exhorted by their service officer, C. B. Dollarhide, to offer their facilities in the hunt for George Kelly, fugitive machine-gunner wanted as one of the kidnapers. Charles M. Colcord, early day cattle king and peace officer, summoned wealthy friends to a meeting for the purpose of offering a sizeable reward for the outlaw.

Counsel for Harvey Bailey, the jailbreaker who was caught sleeping next to a machine gun in the Texas "kidnap farm" had a variety of motions seeking dismissal of charges on the grounds the government has not proved its case. Attorneys for Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Shannon and their young son, owners of the farm, fought the charges at this stage with the contention their story of being forced to guard Urschel has never been impeached.

The seven Twin Cities men arrested for allegedly receiving some of the ransom asked for dismissals, too, their lawyers claiming the government's case so weak as to make unnecessary the presentation of evidence in their behalf.

Plans Rebuttal In Lauer Trial

By The Associated Press

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill., Sept. 23—A quick, sharp rebuttal is to be the prosecution's answer to the story of each of the six defendants charged with the kidnaping of August Luer, 77-year-old Alton banker and meat packer, state's attorney L. M. Geers indicated today.

The prosecutor, whose avowed purpose is to send the six defendants to the electric chair, plans to use only a few witnesses in rebuttal, possibly only one after each defendant leaves the stand, as he did after Randol Eugene Norvell had completed his story late yesterday.

The keynote of Norvell's defense was that he joined the plotters because of his fear of Walter "Irish" O'Malley, now a fugitive, testifying that he had given information which sent O'Malley's brother, Mickey, to the penitentiary 10 years ago for bank robbery.

DARK FUTURE IS FACED BY OHIO SCHOOLS

Marion City and County Districts, However, Faring Better Than Many.

SOME NOT YET OPENED

Nearly Full Terms in Prospect for Most Pupils Here, Is Belief.

Although hard pressed with financial problems that threaten to disrupt plans for full terms, Marion city and county schools apparently are faring better than many other Ohio school districts, it was shown in an Associated Press survey covering the outlook of Ohio districts for the current term.

While some districts in the state are facing prospects of closing schools after the Christmas holidays, and others apparently are depending on the volunteer services of teachers to keep going, all districts in this county, including the city, have reasonable promise of at least an eight-month term, a check-up here showed.

The most serious problems in the Ohio educational picture appear in the Associated Press survey to be rural school districts, where thousands of pupils may hear school bells for only a short time this year because of lack of finances.

Nine-Month Term Aim

The rural school outlook in this county, while darkened by financial problems of a serious nature, is comparatively bright, with D. T. Mills, county superintendent, announcing that a nine-month term in all districts except one is the goal of the county board of education. The one exception is Green Camp village, where sale of $6,000 in bonds as an emergency step is now pending. If these bonds are sold, the district may have eight months of schools, Mr. Mills said. Without this issue, the length of the term there is problematical, he added.

Laboring in the face of shrunken income, city school heads say in eight-month term is "probable," but qualify this statement with many "ifs."

The city schools, Supt. George A. Bowman said, have approximately enough local funds in sight from real estate taxes to carry on a six-month program. Additional funds from the state liquor fuel and intangible taxes may make another two months of school possible, he added;.

"It requires an optimistic estimate of revenues for the current term to predict that the city schools will operate eight months," Supt. Bowman said.

The Associated Press survey showed that in Belmont county, schools at Bellaire have not yet opened and officials of that town of 13,000 said the schools may not be able to open this term. Schools in 50 more districts in that county will be closed unless "teachers of some 15,000 pupils in Belmont county still have faith, hope and charity," George Thornburg, president of the Belmont county board of education, said.

In Lorain county, 2,500 children, one-third of the enrollment in the county system, will be forced to remain at home this winter unless further state aid is furnished rural districts.

Four Holmes county schools face prospects of two or three-month terms; a three-month term was predicted for 760 Cadiz school pupils. Terms of three to seven months are in prospect for 19 districts in Coshocton county.

SHERIFF JEERED BY WESLEYAN STUDENTS

Upper Classmen Pacify Unruly Sophs Who Threaten Jail Siege.

By The Associated Press

DELAWARE, O., Sept. 23—Upper classmen of Ohio Wesleyan university averted a threatened siege of the Delaware county jail last night by pacifying sophomores who surrounded the jail after Sheriff C. E. McKinnie had gone to the rescue of a freshman whom the sophomores had disrobed.

Sheriff McKinnie said the freshman was being escorted down Sandusky street sans clothing when he interrupted. Sophomores who apparently were leading the freshman to the Sulphur Springs "ducking pool" became hostile, and the officer slapped one of the sophomore ringleaders and took him and another to the jail for questioning.

Jeering students who surrounded the jail were pacified by upper classmen, and the sheriff shortly afterward released the two he had taken into custody.

Countywide Safety Drive To Be Launched Monday

First Message of "Fewer Accidents" Will Be Carried To School Pupils.

The most extensive campaign ever conducted to decrease the number of accidents in Marion county will get under way Monday when the countywide safety drive sponsored by the Y's Men's Service club and the state industrial commission will begin.

Four industrial commission speakers will carry a message of safety into dozens of meetings of shop workers, merchants, school pupils and clubs in a five-day campaign. Chief causes of accidents which industrial commission workers have estimated caused $700,000 in Marion county this year will be discussed, together with methods of eliminating them.

Preliminary to the campaign, a group of speakers including a number of Marion officials assisting in the drive, will appear in Sunday school class services Sunday to briefly outline the purpose of the drive and discuss the importance of the campaign's slogan "Always Be Careful."

Campaign in School

The campaign proper will begin Monday morning when speakers visit the rural schools of the county to caution school pupils of the necessity for "safety consciousness." City schools will be visited by the same speakers Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

One of the highlights of the campaign will be a dinner meeting Monday night in Hotel Harding at which Thomas M. Gregory, chairman of the state industrial commission, will be the speaker. This dinner will be attended by members of the Senior and Junior Chambers of Commerce and all other persons interested in hearing the head of the industrial commission speak. Kenneth Fields, secretary of the Retail Merchants' bureau, in charge of ticket sales for the dinner has urged that reservations be filed with him by Monday noon.

Another important meeting scheduled in connection with the campaign will be held Thursday night at Hotel Marion. Izaac Evans, actuary of the industrial commission, will be the speaker and those planning to attend the meeting are contributors to the state industrial insurance fund. Methods by which contributors to the fund may reduce their payments will be discussed.

80 Meetings Scheduled

A rapidly growing calendar of addresses scheduled for industrial commission speakers next week already holds 80 scheduled meet-

MARION MAN SHOT ON TRIP

H. C. Lautenslager Accidentally Wounded by Companion in Canada.

GUIDE ALSO IS VICTIM

Two Hauled 47 Miles Over Rough Roads for Medical Aid.

A vacation fishing and hunting trip into Canada ended in near-tragedy for a Marion man, it was disclosed when H. C. Lautenslager, automobile dealer of 174 Kensington place, returned to his home, suffering from two bullet wounds accidentally inflicted by his companion, a former Marion resident.

Mr. Lautenslager is recovering rapidly from the effects of the wounds, although two large size buckshot which lodged in his body have not been removed. One is in the right lung, the other in the left leg.

Rides Over Trail

Suffering principally from loss of blood, Mr. Lautenslager today told of a three-mile ride on a horse-drawn wagon over a blazed trail, and a 44-mile ride in an automobile, part of it over unpaved and seldom-used roads to get to a hospital to have his wounds treated.

The accident occurred Sept. 11 while Mr. Lautenslager, William Moyer of Columbus, formerly of Marion, two guides and a wagon driver were returning from a trout fishing camp 100 miles north of Ottawa. Weaving along the twisted trail, Moyer had gone ahead of the rest of the party to hunt partridge.

Although far ahead on the trail, Moyer was comparatively close to the followers after rounding a hair-pin curve in the trail. A partridge flew and Moyer fired. Two shot struck Mr. Lautenslager and several others struck one of the guides.

Lost Much Blood

Bleeding from his wounds, mouth and nostrils, Mr. Lautenslager was placed on the wagon and he and the injured guide moved slowly toward a hospital at Buckingham, 47 miles away. Both were losing blood rapidly.

Three and one-half hours later, they arrived at the hospital after a tortuous ride over the rough roads. Both were suffering from loss of blood.

Mr. Lautenslager was treated at the hospital eight days before recovering sufficiently to return to his home by boat and automobile. Unless unexpected trouble develops, the shot will not be removed, he said.

"Whereas the Safety Division of the State Industrial Commisson in its work of disseminating information which shall tend to the safety of our people in the pursuit of their various vocations, and while on our streets and highways, and the protection of property from destruction by fire, has offered by practical demonstration and group assemblages to afford our community the benefit of its investigations elsewhere;

"And whereas the week of Sept. 25 has been duly designated as the time in which such meetings shall be held and demonstrations given;

"Now, therefore, I, William C. Phillians, Mayor of the City of Marion, Ohio, do hereby call upon our citizens to render their cordial support to this worthy movement and urge that they avail themselves as fully as possibly of the opportunities thus afforded."

Final Arrangements Made for Pythian Convention

1,000 Delegates Expected at Three-Day State Meeting of Lodges.

Marion today made final arrangements for its role as convention city next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday for an expected crowd of 1,000 delegates to the annual state conventions of the Knights of Pythias and the Pythian Sisters.

Registrations made so far indicate that every principal hotel in Marion will have a capacity booking and plans are being made for housing many delegates in private homes, local committee members said.

Display of American flags and greeting cards on the three days of the conventions was requested of merchants today by M. L. Wilson, chairman of the local Knights convention committee. The greeting cards are available at the Marion Chamber of Commerce.

Church Services

As a prelude to the actual opening of the convention, members of the two orders and their friends are invited to a special service Sunday at 7:15 p. m. at the Epworth M. E. church. A concert by the Sunday school orchestra, and the first evening sermon here by Rev. Franklin G. Markley, Epworth's new pastor, will feature the service.

Registration of delegates will open Monday at 9 a. m. Pythian Sisters will register at Hotel Marion, their headquarters, and the Knights will have their headquarters in Hotel Harding. Sessions of the Knights convention will be held in The Star auditorium and the Pythian Sisters will meet in the Elks hall instead of at Calvary Evangelical church as previously announced.

Events of the first day, Monday, will be largely incidental to the business of the conventions. At 2 p. m. both orders will tour the city and at 8 p. m. a joint reception will be held in The Star auditorium for state officers and members. A grand ball will start at 9 p. m. The opening business sessions will start Tuesday at 9 a. m. for both orders.

James Dunn Coming

James Dunn Jr. of Cleveland, supreme chancellor of the supreme lodge of the United States and Canada, holder of the highest office attainable in the K. of P. order, will be one of the outstanding guests to attend the convention. He is now completing a tour of Canadian provinces. Other dignitaries expected include Reno S. Harp of Maryland, supreme vice chancellor of the national order; F. G. Sparks of Mt. Vernon, O., grand chancellor of Ohio, and

STUDIES PLAN FOR NEEDY AID

President Considers Adding of Federal Coal Distribution to Program.

TO USE EXCESS SUPPLY

Government Already Hurrying Surplus Foodstuffs to Destitute Citizens.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—President Roosevelt is considering the advisability of adding federal coal distribution to the government's enlarged program for feeding and clothing destitute families.

He studied the possibility of supplying fuel to the needy during the winter months as the agricultural adjustment administration organized for purchasing and distributing through relief agencies portions of the large farm surpluses of beef, dairy and poultry products, cotton and cotton seed.

The President has reached no decision regarding coal purchases. Like agriculture, which the new relief program is designed to help, coal is an industry which has suffered from reduced consumption.

Federal officials, who are given 30 days by the President to start delivering additional food and clothing to the unemployed, today were perfecting the necessary organization details and were planning their work on a long-term rather than a temporary basis.

It was the agricultural administration's goal to get the first of their foodstuffs in the hands of Harry L. Hopkins, the relief administrator, within the week.

Pork will start the train of foodstuffs toward the lines of destitute now estimated to number 3,500,000 families. Already prepared from hogs purchased by the farm agency in its surplus reduction program the first carloads soon will roll into Montana.

Other foodstuffs and clothing made from cotton will follow as fast as Hopkins completes distribution plans. Officials said the federal outlay in the relief program without including cost—probably will greatly exceed the $75,000,000 originally estimated as the cost.

PAIR FOUND DEAD IN MANSFIELD PARK

Police Call Case Murder and Suicide Following Quarrel.

By The Associated Press

MANSFIELD, O., Sept. 23—Both shot through the head, the bodies of Mary Trumpower, 21, and Joseph Gordon, 27, were found together in the cab of a truck in a park here today.

Police said it was a case of murder and suicide, the outgrowth of a quarrel.

Both were in a sitting posture, slumped shoulder to shoulder, on the floor of the cab lay a revolver and three empty shells. There were no signs of a struggle.

The girl's parents had searched through the night when she failed to return home after leaving suddenly on Gordon's plea that he wanted to bid her goodbye.

Relatives related that Miss Trumpower was entertaining another young man when Gordon called and said he was going away from Mansfield. He persuaded her to leave with him.

Frank Keifer, walking through the park to work, came upon the truck and discovered the bodies. Coroner James K. Biddle said they had been dead about 10 hours.

Chilly Wind and Rain Greet Fall on Marion Debut

Ushered in by a chill wind and a rainstorm, fall will make its official visit to Marion tonight at 7:01. Contrary to the arguments of several Marionites that Thursday was the first day of the new season, the World Almanac is the authority that Sept. 23 is the day of the 1933 autumnal equinox and the beginning of fall.

Judging from reports of Marion department stores, the women of the city have been interested in fall for some time. The stores have had a fairly brisk sale of fall merchandise for the last several weeks, and as early as the latter part of July the new fall hats were beginning to draw the attention of the style-conscious.

While citizens of Marion were thinking today of coal bins, the blanket closets and warm clothing, today in the south temperate zone marked the vernal equinox, or the beginning of spring. When Marion is preparing for winter on Dec. 22, those in the southwestern hemisphere already will have had one day of the summer season.

4-POWER ARMS PACT REPORTED

Solid Front Against Germany Seen When World Parley Reopens.

PLAN AWAITS OFFICIAL OK

United States Included in Four-Power Accord To Limit Armaments.

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Sept. 23—That the United States, France, Britain, and Italy will face Germany with a united disarmament front at Geneva was foreseen by French officials today as a result of a tentative agreement for the limitation and control of arms.

The understanding, which awaits ratification by the governments, was reached in conference by representatives of the first three powers, French sources announced.

Obtaining Germany's acceptance of "this common viewpoint," they said, remains the principle obstacle, but hope was expressed that a four-power accord will be completed by Oct. 9, to enable negotiations with Germany to proceed along a "solid front" with the reopening of the world disarmament conference Oct. 16.

The French were understood to have indicated a willingness to trim their powerful army if the German reichswehr is transformed into a shorter-term militia during a transition period preliminary to a reduction of arms.

The duration of this period and the method of arms supervision, on which the French and British differed, seemed virtually settled with the reported agreement on a three- or four-year period, with supervision exercised by a permanent committee to be named by the conference.

Some difficulty was experienced regarding penalties suggested for a breach of any pact. American Ambassador Norman H. Davis said his government would not approve the imposition of sanctions, or penalties.

7,000 TO SHARE IN SPLIT OF EXCESS RATE

Present Subscribers Will Be Given Credit Over 40-Month Period.

CASH IN SOME CASES

Repayment Ends Eight-Year Controversy Over Charges in Marion.

The Ohio Associated Telephone Co. will refund $108,000 to approximately 7,000 Marion residents during a 40-month period to begin Monday, it was announced today by J. T. Carlisa, general manager.

Under a payment plan approved by federal judges who ordered the refund several months ago in the windup of an eight-year rate fight, present subscribers to whom refunds are due will be paid by a reduction of their monthly telephone rentals during the 40-month period, Mr. Carlisa said.

Persons not now subscribers entitled to refunds will be paid in cash some time before May 1, 1934, he said.

He estimated 5,000 persons will receive funds in the form of credits on their monthly bills and that 2,000 others will share in cash refunds.

For persons receiving payments in the form of credits, the refund will amount to a telephone rate reduction for three and one-third years, Mr. Carlisa said. The total amount of refunds due each subscriber has been divided into 40 equal monthly installments, provived the total is $10 or more. These installments will be listed on each monthly bill during the 40-month period and deducted from the amount the subscriber is to pay the telephone company for service.

In cases where the total refund is less than $10, credits will be listed on the monthly bills at the rate of 25 cents a month until payment of the total is completed, Mr. Carlisa said.

All subscribers receiving refunds in form of credits, excepting those to get less than $10, can learn what their total refund will be by multiplying by 40 the credit listed on bills to be mailed Monday, Mr. Carlisa explained.

A 40-month period was designated for the refunds because the excess rate charges which made the refund necessary were collected under bond during a 40-month period from Jan. 1, 1928 to May 1, 1931, Mr. Carlisa said.

Marion residents who were telephone users in that 40-month period but who now do not have telephone service will be required to go to the telephone office on or after Oct. 16 and sign a "request for a subscriber's refund," Mr. Carlisa said. Those residing outside the city may file the same request by mail.

Refund payments unclaimed by May 1, 1935, will be turned over to the county treasurer, under provisions of an Ohio law affecting refunds, Mr. Carlisa added.

Refunds to be paid starting Monday represent the amount of excess rates, as determined by the utilities commission and courts, collected between Jan. 1, 1928, and May 1, 1931. The present rates were ordered into effect in 1930, but litigation regarding the rates and refund was not ended at that time. The last development in refund ligitation was the telephone company's appeal to a three-judge court which, after it had commissioner Judge E. M. Wickham of Delaware to make a thorough investigation, decided the refunds should be paid.

The lowered rates were put into effect May 1, 1931, after the company had sought to prevent the utilities commission from enforcing the rate-reduction order. On the basis of the new rates as compared with the ones collected under bond during the 40-month period, the commission then ordered the company to refund $108,000, a ruling that was sustained by the courts.

A comparison of net rates collected during the 40-month period from Jan. 1, 1928, to May 1, 1931, shows the amount of "excess" collected for each class of service as follows: individual line business phone, old rate $7 a month, new rate $5.50; individual line residence phone, old rate $3, new rate, $2.50; four-party residence phone, old rate $2.25, new rate $2.

The rate fight began March 5, 1925, when the Marion County Telephone Co. asked the utilities commission for permission to increase its rates. It continued under the Ohio Associated Telephone Co. which purchased the Marion County Telephone Co. in October, 1931.

MEDIATORS SEEK TO END CUBAN DISPUTE

Early Solution of Difficulties Seen as Factions Meet in Capital.

By The Associated Press

HAVANA, Sept. 23- President Grau San Martin and his foes and friends met with neutral mediators today and an early solution to bitter political differences was officially predicted as a result.

Guarded by heavily-armed detachments of cavalry members of the student directory, the President's strongest supporters and leaders of five opposition factions convened in the Presidential palace to resume negotiations the executive broke off a week ago when he refused to entertain demands for his resignation.

Later the students issued a memorandum as an answer to their opponents proposals for governmental reorganization, which said:

"We do not comprehend why politicians are not supporting the best government Cuba ever had. It asked all Cubans to cooperate with the Grau regime in establishing peace and order and obtaining the recognition of civilized nations."

Meanwhile open revolt was under way in at least two provinces. Seven hundred rebels concentrated in small town near Cifuentes in the interior of Matanzas province. A few hundred miles away, in Camaguey province, Jose Elaz Hernandez directed efforts to get him.

U. S. MAY END DRY LAW PROSECUTIONS

Minor Cases Expected To Be Dropped by Certainty of Repeal.

[illegible] Sept. 23 - If [illegible] liquor comes back to Ohio it [illegible] itself bound with regulations wrought by a strict state [illegible] supervision.

The committee sent out [illegible] questionnaires.

Two other methods were suggested. One would set up a quasi-public corporation to dispense liquor but would be controlled by the state. The other would allow the open sale of intoxicating liquor at retail. Neither, Ackerman revealed, received much support.

In fact, those answering the questionnaires were outspoken in their opposition to the sale of intoxicating liquors in hotels, restaurants and clubs in the manner that beer is sold. Furthermore the answers displayed a trend in favor of setting up a separate commission on hard liquor and not placing its control with the present state liquor control commission which has been administering beer laws.

On the score of less possibility of violations and fewer evasions of taxes, the responses favored the state monopoly scheme.

WORKMEN CLEARING AWAY FIRE DEBRIS

Schaffner Furniture Company Prepares To Repair and Redecorate Structure.

Carpenters and other workmen were at work today in the H. Schaffner furniture store at Main and Church streets clearing away debris from a two-alarm fire early yesterday morning which damaged the furniture building and contents.

Wilfred Schaffner, secretary and treasurer of the company said the store will be reopened, probably late next week to sell out the present stock in preparation for repairing and redecorating the interior.

Meanwhile the company is operating its regular business from its warehouse in the Miller Market.

Mr. Schaffner said the cause of the fire has not yet been determined although it is believed to have been caused by an electrical short circuit.

The fire, one of the largest in Marion in recent years, was battled by 27 firemen from three companies. All firemen off duty, except four on vacations, were called to fight the blaze.

LAWMAKERS LOOK TO NEXT EXTRA SESSION

One Special Meeting Over Plans Already Started for Another.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23 — The special legislative session concluded with a calm in marked contrast to the turbulence that attended its vote on adjournment, lawmakers today were preparing for the next one.

Three senators and three representatives were appointed to a special tax commission empowered to recommend revenue legislation to another special session which will convene either late in November or early in December.

Governor White, denying he had influenced the adjournment of the special session before it adopted school relief plans, had nothing to add to his previous statements. He would recall the assembly later in the year.

The call will follow whatever developments the November elections produce on repeal and on the lowering of the maximum limitation of real estate taxation. An entire new tax program will have to be devised.

Meantime, the governor pondered the names of five citizens he will name to the special tax commission to help the legislators already selected.

Shirt "Lost" by Marion Man at Fair in Chicago

One Marion resident managed to survive the 1929 deluge but he lost his shirt in Chicago this week.

Richard Kennedy of 714 East Church street went to the World's fair and in Chicago he saw a shirt that struck his fancy. He wore it the next day and that night when he was preparing for bed, he threw it over a chair in his room on the nineteenth floor of one of the Y. M. C. A. buildings. He flung the windows high and piled into bed, dead tired from tramping the fair grounds.

Just as he was dozing off to sleep something white sailed past him and out the window, and after the "ghost" went two dark objects. With one leap he was at the window and saved his suit, but the shirt streaked merrily on, carried by a strong gale that was whipping the city that night.

Mr. Kennedy returned home yesterday, with no extra luggage. After losing one shirt, he didn't take any chances on any more purchases.

The Stars Say

For Sunday, Sept. 24

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE is a very active and happy one for affairs of church and clergy, also for those in employment and for all interests of a religious, mystical or occult nature. There may be angles of the mysterious, intriguing or peculiar dominat in both private as well as more workaday matters of interest.

Those whose birthday it is may look for some benefit, preferment or honors from employers or those in places of power and authority, who may feel particularly friendly and gracious.

A child born on this day may be clever, versatile, inclined or given to the pursuit of the unusual or exotic in poetry, music, art or emotional expression or conduct. It should prosper with employers and friends.

Notable nativity: Mark Hanna, politician.

For Monday, Sept. 25

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL forecast is for a fairly active and gratifying day in both business and private connections. There may be a fairly lively tempo in both, with a well-stimulated spirit of initiative and enterprise. But there is an element of intrigue, sordid or subtle attack which it would be well to be alert for.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of an interesting and prosperous as well as happy year in both business and private affairs if they will be on guard against some element of treachery, subtlety or betrayal, particularly in contacts with strange persons or circumstances.

A child born on this day may be talented in many practical as well as cultural directions, but may lean toward the subtle, peculiar or intriguing.

Notable nativity: D. O. Mills, capitalist.

Life's Influences

A SERMONETTE

BY REV. ROBERT W. HUCKE, S.T.D.

Pastor, the First Reformed Church

"I have a good thought in my heart as to he."—Prov. 23:7.

WHAT are the great factors [illegible] influence our [illegible] This question, together with the question of how to control [illegible] influences, is a problem [illegible] raised frequently by [illegible] And rightly [illegible] is an undeniable fact [illegible] guided by [illegible] we certainly be[illegible] become a slave to [illegible] we become, but what we [illegible] rather what [illegible] make us.

There [illegible] influences that are [illegible] upon us. There is [illegible] type of publication [illegible] appeals to [illegible] of sentiment [illegible] there are those of entertainment [illegible] desire for objectives [illegible] amusement which [illegible] often in the last analysis reduce [illegible] to greed, and there is the [illegible] of crooning of more [illegible] than sense, there are the [illegible] with their great appeal [illegible] the newspaper with all types [illegible] and finally, there [illegible] the immovable rock of the Holy Bible and the Church built [illegible]

All these great factors enter into our life, and in a [illegible] subtle, gradual way [illegible] our destiny. We are [illegible] that not one of these [illegible] the dominating factor in [illegible] but rather that as we live in a complex social order, so we have become within ourselves a melting pot for all these influences.

The result is that we become a mixture of emotions and impulses both for the good and for the bad, as a result of what we have seen, or heard or by means of alluring perfumes. Thus we receive our impressions, which gradually mould our thoughts, form our acts and develop our habits. In order that we may be the true follower of the Lord Jesus that we would be, and that our Christian parents desire of us we must see to it that those factors which influence our life are Christian, with Christian acts and Christian interpretations.

If each individual were truly Christian, and each industry and organization truly loyal to the Lord Jesus, then there would need be no fear of the influences emanating from these. Oh, that each home of us could and would say

"Take my life and let it be, consecrated Lord to Thee
Take my moments and my days, let them flow in ceaseless praise.
Take my hands and let them move at the impulse of thy love.
Take my feet and let them be, swift and beautiful for Thee.
Take my voice and let me sing, always only for my king.
Take my lips and let them be, Filled with Messages from Thee.
Take my silver and my Gold, not a mite would I withhold,
Take my intellect, and use, every power as Thou shalt choose.
Take my will and make it thine, it shall be no longer mine.
Take my heart it is Thine own; it shall be thy Royal throne.
Take my love; my Lord, I pour at Thy feet its treasure store.
Take myself and I will be, ever, only, all for Thee."

A campaign to raise $250 has been launched by members of the congregation of the Seventh Day Adventist church in Marion, their contribution to the annual Harvest Ingathering in the interest of home and foreign mission enterprises. The work is in charge of Dr. Maude Bull and L. B. Hill. A general fund of one million dollars is expected to be raised by the entire denomination for use in the uplift work.

Members of the Marion congregation are very appreciative for what has been contributed by friends and business acquaintances in the city, and say that these contributions have helped to build hospitals, sanitariums treatment rooms, schools and publishing houses in lands where the natives heretofore lived in spiritual darkness, superstition, and abject misery.

Members of the faith contribute several millions of dollars each year though their tithes and free-will offerings toward the uplift of humanity both spiritually and physically and to date no retrenchments from opened posts have been made.

In Ohio they have 80 units devoted to this work and last year they collected in the state $16,000 as compared with $86,500 spent in operating soup kitchens, clothing depots and in medical and other services. They also have been canning and otherwise preparing for the coming winter's needs throughout the summer.

His district sent him to the Iowa legislature and her services were sought in community and governmental problems to such an extent that he became known as an authority in that field.

Mr. Plattenburg has traveled extensively throughout Europe, Asia and Africa and has an unlimited store of interesting and thrilling adventures. Although he has had a wealth of experience on and off the platform for 23 years he is only now at his prime of life.

The Feast of the Tabernacles

John chap. 7 verses 2-14 and 50-53 quoted.

2. Now the Jews feast of the tabernacles was near at hand.
3. His brethren therefore said unto Him, Depart hence, and go into Judea, that thy disciples also may see the works that Thou doest.
4. For there is no man that doeth any thing in secret, and he himself seeketh to be known openly. If Thou do these things, shew Thyself to the world.
5. For neither did His brethren believe in Him.
6. Then Jesus said unto them, My time is not yet come: but your time is always ready.
7. The world can not hate you; but Me it hateth, because I testify of it, that the works thereof are evil.
8. Go ye unto this feast: I go not up yet unto this feast; for My time is not yet full come.
9. When He had said these words unto them, He abode still in Galilee.
10. But when His brethren were gone up, then went He also unto the feast, not openly, but as it were in secret.
11. Then the Jews sought Him at the feast, and said, Where is He?
12. And there was much murmuring among the people concerning Him: for some said, He is a good man: others said, Nay; but He deceiveth the people.
13. Howbeit no man spake openly of Him for fear of the Jews.
14. Now about the midst of the feast Jesus went up into the temple and taught.

50-53

50. Nicodemus saith unto them, (he that came to Jesus by night, being one of them,)
51. Doth our law judge any man, before it hear Him, and know what He doeth?
52. They answered and said unto him, Art thou also of Galilee? Search, and look: for out of Galilee ariseth no prophet.
53. And every man went unto his own house.

JOHN gives us the only account of this feast of tabernacles, the time of year it was to be observed was written in Lev. 23:24, that ancient book of law.

This feast was celebrated in the seventh month (Sept. Oct.) and marked the close of the harvest. It was also a commemoratoin of the journey from Egypt to Palestine. It lasted for one week, each day of which there were a great many sacrifices made. At the time of Jesus, the ceremony of bringing water from Siloam to the temple was included, where it was poured on the altar. The lighting of the four golden candelabre in the Court of Women was another of these ceremonies. This week of festivities was always ended with a very holy day on which thanksgiving to God was made.

There was still a great deal to be accomplished in the establishment of the kingdom of God on earth. Jesus was not quite ready to expose Himself to the danger of death, so He has His brethren go before Him. He had made a great impression on His countrymen, and wanted a few quiet hours before going to the feast.

Appearing at this this feaitval, when it is about half over, He teaches, beginning to now reveal to all who He is. He gains many followers during the short time that He has to give His messages, at the feast. With the departure of the friendly multitude from the feast, His life is no longer safe. He must flee with His disciples to help them all that He possibly can in preparing them to carry out His message to the world.

Subject next week: The Parable of the Good Samaritan.

Heroes of Science.

History is full of the glorious stories of men of science who have offered their lives in the cause of great experiments in the interest of mankind and to the list of these noble adventurers must be added the names of three St. Louis physicians who have subjected themselves to the dread "sleeping sickness" which has taken 73 lives there.

Even this honor, however, must be deferred, for these volunteers preserve the anonymity which is a traditional part of their professional ethics and, for the present at least, their identity is known only to the men conducting the experiment.

Investigation has led to the belief that the germ of the disease is carried by mosquitoes. These doctors, therefore, have allowed themselves to be bitten by insect which previously had fed on the blood of known encephalitis victims. If the theory is well founded, they will contract the disease for which science is not ready to advance any certain cure. Some of them may die but they will have established the fact that the mosquito is a disease carrier and will have opened the way to control the spread of infection since mosquitoes can be eradicated.

It is a rather desperate experiment. Men have been immortalized who subjected themselves to dangers no less real and in causes much less meritorious.

Whatever the outcome of the test, these unnamed doctors are heroes of science, typical of the men and women who daily risk their own safety in the cause of eventual good to all the people.

Rotary In Action.

Members of the Rotary club in Havana have no time these days for the singing of the "Hello" song. They are endeavoring to act as mediators between the various parties now struggling for leadership in the island republic.

It is an unusual role for a luncheon club to assume but, after all, what better group can be selected as the go-between than this representative cross section of the better type of citizenship.

Observers fear that the Rotarians will get their fingers burned in handling such a hot subject as Cuban politics. The task of bringing the warring factions into accord through any series of conferences and concessions seems an insurmountable one.

The path of the peacemaker, at all times, is a difficult one and the way of those who seek to bring order in Cuba is beset with especially trying problems.

The Rotarians are not attempting, it is said, to swing influences to any party or group but have merely tendered their good offices for the purpose of acting as a means of communication through which the conflicting groups may transmit their proposals.

If they succeed in bringing order to their land they will have brought about an historic accomplishment. In any event it is a brave and gracious gesture and, after all, about as sound a plan as anything which might be suggested for putting up a perch on which the dove of peace may find a landing place.

Fascism Over Europe.

Another peaceful dictatorship has been established and Fascism now spread in an unbroken wall from the Mediterranean to the North Sea. Austria, which has separated the established and smoothly working fascism of Mussolini from the turbulent fascism of Hitler, surrenders to pressure from within and without and joins these nations in the experiment with nationalistic government under a dictatorship.

Dollfuss, the big little man of Austria, wears the toga, a tribute to his popularity with the Austrian people. He resisted the trend toward fascism and it is a rather singular circumstance that his personal hold on the people should be sufficient to establish him in power under the new regime.

What the new form of government means to Austria may be told within a very short time. The new dictator, taking for himself five cabinet posts including that of chancellor, has surrounded himself with men representing several sides of political life. If he can coordinate their policies into a workable union he has a good chance for success.

A benevolent dictatorship, from the abstract and speculative point of view, is good

[illegible]

Time To Start Buying.

Parading for the NRA [illegible] it is time to do something. That is time to start spending [illegible] the wheels of industry turning.

National recovery from depression is a circular process. Men are put back to work in order that their pay may be spent in stores which buy products of the factories to pay the men who have jobs there and to put others to work.

About two-thirds of the circle has been formed. The men are working and they have been on the job long enough to find money in their pockets again. The merchants have laid in their stocks thereby absorbing the product of the mills. It remains for the public, made up largely of those who have benefitted by increased industrial employment, to patronize the stores in order that they may turn the goods on their shelves into money with which to buy more stock from the mills.

The wheel of prosperity cannot keep turning unless it is complete and the sector on which all the rest of the machine is built is that constructed of consumer purchasing power. Momentous issues rest on the spirit with which the public does its part during the next few weeks.

If purchases keep pace with the gains already made in employment prosperity will be well on the road and it may be said safely that America has lifted itself out of the depression.

Frozen Billions.

Indications from Washington that the government hopes to have the banking situation well lifted and settled by the first of the year promise a tremendous boost to the prosperity wagon now laboring up the long steep hill to good times.

Little has been heard of the banking situation since those hectic days last March when the national finances were frozen for a few days. Most of the banks reopened and since that time the financial horizon has been fairly clear.

More than 3,000 banks closed during the holiday have not opened their doors and they include some of the country's larger institutions. In addition some 5,000 banks, mostly small ones, which closed some time before the holiday are inoperative. While little has been said about it, government agencies have been busy canvassing the situation and they expect to proceed shortly to aid in the reopening of those banks which are sound and to liquidate those whose condition is hopeless.

Approximately $7,500,000,000 is tied up in the closed banks. This is more than twice the sum which the government appropriated for its public works program on which was based much of the hope for the nation's return to prosperity. If this sum, or a considerable portion of it, were made available to depositors such a tidal wave of buying would be started as would carry the United States far on the road to prosperity.

Depositors in building and loan companies and small savings banks also merit some attention from federal and state officials. Their funds have been tied up for three years and they seem to be the forgotten men of the bank relief program. Most of these depositors are the men and women who are in greatest need of the money. Their deposits, in many cases, represent careful savings from earnings and in many cases were a truly sacrificial safeguard accumulated against a rainy day.

The deluge has come and gone and the sun is breaking through the clouds and still these savings are not available to their owners.

Now is the time when [illegible] counts. The recovery administration is worried because production is exceeding consumption. Industry has approached its normal rate of production but buying lags, not from choice on the part of the prospective customers but because they [illegible] cash.

Release of frozen deposits is the key to the problem and if the government can accomplish this it will turn loose private funds which have far more importance benefits than can be anticipated from the spending of public money.

Highlights of Ohio History

READ IN AN OLD PAPER

An old newspaper is [illegible] thing for the change [illegible] factuate and doing [illegible] cated in the advertisements [illegible] In the issue of the Columbus [illegible] 12, 1823 there is an [illegible] Brooks, who had a wool [illegible] and John W. Smith of Columbus advertised wool carding machines of the latest pattern for sale. He also carried [illegible] pillow, ginnies, picking machines and other cotton machinery now unknown.

Another interesting advertisement of the Ohio penitentiary, suggested it was the prevailing notion prisoners should work and the trustees offered for sale scores of their products ranging from whisky barrels to curry combs. There was one solitary social item, but it was interesting. It told of the marriage of the Honorable Benj Tappan of Steubenville -35 years later U. S Senator—to Mrs. Elizabeth Frazier.

Gloucester is a unique mold, an island, [illegible] semi-circles flung askew [illegible] coast. The water [illegible] with fishing smacks, [illegible]. The hardy, wind-tanned [illegible] for generations of [illegible] folk.

[illegible] accomplished idler there are few [illegible] the charm of the Gloucester [illegible] Artists from all over have stood [illegible] here and it has been the [illegible] for canvasses in important galleries abroad. Every few hours [illegible] schooner sloshes in from [illegible]. Other sails flutter in the sun [illegible]. Miles of nets are being [illegible]. Fussy crews are cutting [illegible] waving good-bye.

[illegible] most famous citizen at [illegible] not a fisherman. He is young [illegible] Hammond, Jr., engineering wizard [illegible] in a castle along the Cape Ann [illegible] a golf drive away. His laboratories [illegible] and a forbidding wall encloses [illegible]. Young Hammond is seldom [illegible] when he appears is cordial and [illegible].

A [illegible] of the community is Dogtown, a [illegible] to the old town green. It is [illegible] abandoned village. Only ancient [illegible] cellar holes remain of a hell-like [illegible] where witchcraft threaded its [illegible]. Dogtown men went to the [illegible] dogs to guard their women [illegible] and never returned. On the [illegible] is a fierce rock formation called "The Witch's Jaw."

• • •

Gloucester's boom opulence had about 25,000 [illegible]. This has dwindled to about 2000. The majority of men go out in the fishing banks sometimes 250 miles out at 3 in the morning and seldom return until their boats are filled. Prices for the catches fluctuate daily.

The most famous spot hereabouts, of course, is Norman's Woe, the deadly reef setting for Longfellow's "The Wreck of the Hesperus." We motored out along the appropriately named Hesperus avenue as the sun blazed in the dull red evening glow that is the fisherman's delight. It seemed incredible that this rock not more than 200 feet long, jutting out of the sea, doomed so many mariners. All about were far more pretentious projections.

• • •

On a bench hewn of rough logs and cupped in a rocky outcrop at Magnolia we had a poetical view of Rafe's Chasm and Norman's Woe. Only my wife could recall the lines. As she recited them, and I'll wager they are correct, they ran:

Such is the wreck of the Hesperus
In the midnight and the snow.
God save us all from a death like this
On the reef of Norman's Woe!

Driving on around the cape we got the stillies. Everything went suddenly annisquam—the town of Annisquam, Annisquam River and Annisquam Willows. We tried to figure out the meaning. Harry Silvey suggested it sounded like suddenly sitting down on a ripe pumpkin. And I discovered you could [illegible] Annisquam for any active verb and the name at all become a perfect [illegible].

Washington And Wall Street

BY GEORGE DURNO

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—Senator Bob Wagner of N. Y. and his national labor board are doing yeoman service in settling labor disputes before the blue eagle is piling a tough beat on them.

About 200,000 striking men and women have been returned to work more or less satisfied. Better than half that number more still are out. Almost without exception the strikes have been rows over the open shop. A lot of the employers are dead set against letting the American Federation of Labor organize their workers.

The workers balk at joining company unions.

The national labor board is now dealing with strikes involving around 100,000 employes. All of them are NRA differences.

The conciliation division of the labor department is mediating walkouts involving around 20,000 more. Here again the question of right to organize juts up.

President Green of the A. F. of L. says he is going to organize all of the unorganized and adds there is no room in the United States for any other labor movement.

Some of the biggest industrialists say otherwise. It looks like a merry battle.

Relief

The past week has produced very definite moves to speed up the various emergency recovery organizations. Those on the inside say they are only a start.

The last meeting of the executive council was chock full of straight from the shoulder talk. President Roosevelt made it clear that he wants more results than have shown thus far.

Winter is close upon us, he pointed out, and the time has arrived for some heavy applications of the whip.

The confidential reports Deputy Public Work Administrator H. W. Waite sent back from his nation-wide inspection tour convinced all concerned that a lot of red tape must be cut. Allotments of public works funds aren't turning into payrolls.

NRA hasn't been going ahead too fast, it was agreed. The real trouble is that other agencies have been lagging too far behind.

Prices are going up and men aren't going back to work in large numbers.

Action

Farm Credit Administrator Morgenthau has seen the handwriting on the wall. His "call for action" that went out to all of his subordinates couldn't have left any doubt in anyone's mind that what he wanted was action.

Those closest to the thankless task of extending credit to the farmers say Morgenthau is doing a good job. He inherited the set up from the Hoover administration. Now he is lining up his help as if they were starting from scratch.

Morgenthau is quite honest about the difficulties of the situation. He admits financed mortgage. But he's going to get it down to two or three weeks if he has to burn all the red tape in the United States.

The one saving grace is that the farmers aren't being foreclosed. Morgenthau gets about one letter in two weeks complaining about a flint-hearted landlord.

Foolscap

Wheat growers probably have not realized how close they came to not getting a world restriction agreement at the recent Geneva conference.

Matters started off well enough. Canadian Premier Bennett brought in a formula for regulating wheat production. It was accepted in record time—for an international conference.

Then came a most terrible hitch.

There was one copy of the agreement. Thirty-one were needed and there was no paper available of the exact dimensions that international custom decrees is necessary for such a document.

Geneva, being the seat of many world meetings, has standardized the size of paper for treaties. It must be two feet long and 20 inches broad.

The conference was adjourned while frantic messengers searched [illegible] for the nation will win out the byways for some of it in its plan to unfreeze deposits in closed banks by the inflation method. Even the committee's critics admit that it has put over one of the greatest selling jobs on record. The wise boys of Wall Street are trimming their sails accordingly. One conservative says: "If we must issue paper money, thawing out congealed deposits is about the most useful thing we could do with it."

Check-Up

Few people know of the elaborate—and effective—check system which the federal reserve banks have set up to get the dope on the export of American capital.

Last week a New York broker bought a big block of DuPont stock, which is also popular in London and can easily be marketed there. He thought his operation was a secret. The same afternoon he had the surprise of his life when a high-up in the local federal reserve bank called him on the phone and said: "Don't think that we aren't wise to you because you got away with a similar transaction two weeks ago."

The federal reserve banks have an almost complete list of "fugitives" for the government's use if and when.

Enforcement

It doesn't look as if there would be any serious attempt to compel signers of the PRA (the blanket code) to live up to their agreement. Complaints of violations are gathering dust in files and there is no disposition on the part of the local NRA compliance [illegible] to sharpen the blue eagle's claws.

Reported violators will be approached on the basis that they of course are living up to their agreement and that the committee is sorry to disturb them. They will only be deprived of their eagles if an exhaustive investigation proves their guilt conclusively. Some of the chiselers are laughing up their sleeves.

Enforcement of the permanent codes for separate industries may be much more strict. It had better be. Many of those who enlisted in good faith are becoming disgusted with the [illegible] they see around them and are wondering whether the game is on them.

Skeptic

A New York banker did his best the other day to explain the national industrial recovery act to a visiting French industrialist. When he got through he inquired "And what do you think of NIRA?" The Frenchman shot back "NIRA PAS" (won't go).

TODAY
Arthur Brisbane's News Review

NEW YORK, Sept. 23—[illegible] curious young gentleman [illegible] with some excitement [illegible] waters of the Barbento [illegible] oil prospectors have found [illegible] section of large diamonds [illegible] ing one weighing 2,000 carats [illegible] the biggest ever discovered.

Diamonds are something [illegible] human brains. The diamond [illegible] fine quality, would be worth [illegible] 50,000 whereas if of inferior [illegible] good only to make [illegible] grind it might be worth [illegible] $1.00.

The brain of Edison [illegible] work for millions of [illegible] warm many hundreds. [illegible] Long of these brains are worth [illegible] ten cents the ton.

Also this diamond [illegible] the importance of the [illegible] cation and train. A [illegible] rough, the diamond would [illegible] a curiosity. It must be [illegible] polished, then comes its [illegible].

So with human raw [illegible] means the cutting of [illegible] and polishing of [illegible].

What applies to diamonds [illegible] human beings applies to [illegible] stones.

A ton of iron in the ground [illegible] be worth ten or fifteen dollars [illegible] the ton of [illegible] steel [illegible] or it made into [illegible] watch springs would be worth [illegible] real million dollars.

America Looks On

Herr Eckener, veteran [illegible] flier, will take his [illegible] Z-[illegible] from Germany to South America [illegible] then from Brazil to the Chicago Century of Progress exposition.

This [illegible], which [illegible] marvels the engineering skill [illegible] practically everything but the [illegible] terprise and the courage, [illegible] on while Germany does what [illegible] country has been unable to do.

We are going to tax on [illegible] German achievement, however, [illegible] printing postage stamps at 5 cents apiece to carry Zeppelin mail [illegible] the Chicago exposition and [illegible] a little income.

There was a day when [illegible] American nation if it [illegible] sent rockets flying across [illegible] seem to South America [illegible] Chicago and back to Germany [illegible] would not be counted merely [illegible] a 50-cent stamp in honor [illegible] the event. Perhaps when we [illegible] over our little ratching of [illegible] rols and hurrahs we shall return [illegible] doing real things, indicating power and ambition.

• • •

Two pieces of news to interest every woman.

No. 1—A woman of 25 in Chicago, told by friends that she looked young, thought she would find out about it, bought a steamship ticket to the exposition and went in unquestioned.

No. 2—From Delhi India comes a doctor's certificate that a baby weighing four pounds three ounces, normal, healthy, has been born to a Hindu girl not yet seven years of age. The child's mother suffered from fright for three days.

Those who believe the Hindus should be kicked out of India should remember that if it were not for the British tens of thousands of Hindu girls under seven years of age would be married off ten to middle-aged men, every year.

More important news for women. Beauty parlor experts will call themselves "beauticians," undertakers call themselves "morticians," announce that "permanent patches" are coming back.

With small hat, please wear [illegible] patch near your eye. With [illegible] hat, wear it near the mouth. With common sense, don't wear it at all, but beauticians don't tell you that.

Dresses are to be very long in the back, a semi-nightgown flowing gown effect, and very short in the front, making every woman show the figure plain. How that can be done we don't know, but they tell you do it you are not fashionable.

• • •

Farm Girl Champion

This ought to interest [illegible] men:

Helen Godchart, a fine [illegible] looking girl, 17 years old, [illegible] American farm girl champion [illegible] at Pomona, Calif., milking, husking corn, churning and [illegible]. She ought to marry the [illegible] young American thinker [illegible] 30, whoever he may be [illegible] become the champion [illegible].

Unfortunately, that [illegible] young thinker will pick out [illegible] some wisp of a girl [illegible] not milk a guinea pig [illegible] a big cow. But can paint [illegible] man face prettily. And so [illegible].

New York City is interested [illegible] its recent catch of alleged [illegible] ers, kidnapers, including [illegible] lieves, the "first real blood" captured in a long time.

Murder, in these gangster-[illegible] eteer-kidnap-prohibition [illegible] real industry, and profession [illegible] that often combine use of [illegible] with assassination, are [illegible] business-like fashion for the "job." Somebody puts the "on the spot," identifying in some way for the killer [illegible] never seen him.

The killer kills [illegible] and waits for the next.

Odd and Interesting.

The Indian government [illegible] experiments with radio [illegible] use with planes in [illegible] service in the [illegible] Madras and Calcutta.

For keeping the body warm a gas [illegible] is advertised that [illegible] as a [illegible] and is [illegible] in a pocket.

For advertising [illegible] signs have been [illegible] on with the same [illegible] are fixed in the [illegible] which pictures are running.

The closest modern [illegible] of the dinosaurs of prehistoric [illegible] are an male living on [illegible] lava are known as Komodo [illegible] beasts that sometimes grow [illegible] long.

The Word of God.

Quality and Style Always Featured at Kline's

SECOND FLOOR OF STORE REMODELLED

New Fitting Rooms and Other Facilities Added To "Style and Fashion Center."

The second floor at Kline's ...tion dresses and coats, sweaters and ...rts, called, "Marion's style and fash...ion center" has recently been remodelled to further advance the cause of "Dame Fashion."

New individually lighted fitting rooms, additional mirrors, and the enlargement of a sportswear and large size dress section, greatly enhance the beauty of this large fashion floor. The junior miss, too, has not been forgotten, with an entire section for junior misses' silk

Marion's Needs Supplied

Richard P. Israel, manager of the Kline store, is greatly enthused with the new second floor. Mr. Israel at one time was stylist for Marcus Inc., in Dallas, Tex., and says of it that in Hollywood, Calif. He says: "What Marion needs and now has is the individual appearance of the smart shop in a department store. Kline's now have that and I am quite sure that our many customers and friends will greatly appreciate these changes.

"We always endeavor to have the largest selection of highly styled merchandise, such as dresses, millinery and coats, in town. When a woman wishes to make a choice of wearing apparel she likes to have a large selection, of the NEW things. Since I have been here this is what we have been endeavoring to do, and we shall continue along these lines.

"Style of course comes first, but without quality style loses everything; for a garment must be well made in order for the customer to be well pleased.

"This Fall," Mr. Israel continued, "will be one of individuality as compared with the endless repetition of the past few seasons, when labor and machinery were so plentiful that by the time a garment was made to retail at $15 other manufacturers copied the style down at $10, others at $7, at $5 and so on down the line. What with the coming of the NRA and agreements signed by manufacturers not to work their machines over a certain number of hours, there is destined to be a dearth of merchandise eliminating this practice.

Buyer's Individualism Will Count.

"The buyer is now coming into his own, and his selection, his taste will reflect the smartness of merchandise in his store. He will have to know quality to satisfy the public, who will continue to demand the best at the lowest possible prices."

Interior View of Kline's Second Floor

Above is an interior photographic view of the large second floor of Kline's Department store, 188-192 West Center street. This large floor is devoted entirely to misses' and women's wearing apparel.

Style a Keynote in Home Furnishings

Style is decidedly a main factor in the furnishing of draperies curtains and novelties which tend to make the home beautiful.

Kline's have an entire balcony devoted to these departments. New styles in curtains, panels, ...ottage sets, ...s, draperies, cretonnes, bedspreads are coming into their own and every day. Expert advice ...s often a great aid to these problems. Miss Ollie Weber in charge of Kline's yard goods and drapery department can help you in solving your problem.

Kline's Store 100% NRA

Kline's Department store was among the first to sign the President's National Industrial Recovery Act Code.

On Aug. 1 Kline's issued the following statement:

"KLINE'S pledges immediately conformity with the Emergency Re-Employment Drive proclamation of the President under the National Industrial Recovery Act.

"We did this not alone from a sense of duty, but because we firmly believe that shorter hours increased employment and increased wages will speed up our nation's return to normalcy.

"Starting August 1st, 1933, the hours and salaries of our employees will conform with the provisions set forth by the proclamation of the President of the United States in this drive to employ more people and at higher wages.

"Inasmuch as we believe it will require a short additional time to restore normal buying power under the administration's program, we pledge to our customers all our effort and efficiency towards holding prices down to the lowest possible levels.

"The President's suggestion that each of us help himself by helping others is an ideal one."

Payroll Increased $116.

Kline's payroll for week ending Sept. 2, usually one of the lowest volume weeks in the year, showed an increase of $116.33 more than for the last week in July, before the signing of the NRA code.

This also included full time employment to seven persons who had formerly worked only part time.

INFANTS' DEPARTMENT NOW ON MAIN FLOOR

A larger corner of Kline's main floor has just recently been remade into a modern infants' and children's department.

This will give greater service to customers, and enable them to select small children's wear more conveniently. The department is in charge of Mrs. Bess Hamner.

The production of tobacco has been developed into one of the leading industries of Palestine.

LOW PRICE POLICY ALWAYS AT KLINE'S

Every Member of Family Can Be Fitted in Newest Merchandise at Minimum Cost.

Kline's Department store at 188-192 West ... street features only the newest merchandise, of highest quality and at low prices.

Every member of the family can be fitted in dress, sports and work clothing at this great store.

A large men's and boys' department features quality dress clothes, boys' suits, work, play and dress shirts. Kline's pants department offers an unusually large selection of trousers for work, dress, extra pants, knickers and corduroys. More than 50 different types and styles in work gloves alone are always carried in stock. Work clothing for men and boys, and play clothing for the younger boys are here in an unusually large variety.

Complete Department

A complete department for women's and misses' sweaters comprises the entire front of the store between the doors on the main floor . . . sweaters, blouses and scarfs.

Kline's large assortment of wash frocks makes it especially attractive to women who wish to choose from 1,500 to 3,500 wash frocks. Fitting room accommodations, too.

A large corset department, hosiery, pajamas, slips, undies and other articles of intimate apparel are on the main floor. These stocks are replenished daily with new merchandise from the style centers of the country.

"The millinery department" features styles from New York and Paris WHEN they are being worn there. New styles at popular prices arrive constantly.

Cosmetics, too, play their part in the quality parade. At Kline's you will find unusual bargains in nationally advertised cosmetics that you may be sure have been selected for their highest quality ingredients.

Sport wear for those from two to 72 are found galore in every department. Men's blazers, sport coats, jackets, women's skirts, sports dresses, girls and junior misses, too. The little miss and little fellow also find a large selection in what he or she would prefer for the big shows this fall.

Quality counts, too, in all lines, and Kline's endeavor is to give Marion every day in the year service, style, quality and low prices.

FOOTWEAR A MOST IMPORTANT ACCESSORY

Shoes are becoming more and more of an important feature in the selection of a harmonious ensemble.

Kline's shoe department under the direction of Mr. H. E. Platt can take care of all shoe needs in men's, women's and children's shoes. And Kline shoes are built to wear and wear.

TRADING AT KLINE'S PROFITABLE FOR MEN

More men of Marion and vicinity are every day becoming convinced that quality merchandise at low prices is a far better buy than just—low prices.

That's why Kline's men's and boys' departments are showing steady increases in unit sales as well as new customers. It isn't how little one pays for a shirt or a pair of trousers; it's how much they cost one in the long run.

Every article in Kline's store is of the finest first quality; every shirt, sweater, suit of underwear, raincoat, and so forth is sample tested by Kline's buyers; and if they don't hold up according to Kline's specifications, they are not purchased for the store.

Style for men is just is important as style for women. Kline's buyers are style conscious, and for this you pay no more than elsewhere. If it's new, men, it'll be at Kline's, and it'll wear you well and give you value received and then some.

Given in Marriage

BY ADELE GARRISON

With regret Madge and her father turn their thoughts from her mother's tragic romance to problems of the moment.

"AT LAST," [illegible] My [illegible] were pushed, [illegible] finished [illegible] the paper [illegible] the sepia [illegible] with [illegible] [illegible] had [illegible] from [illegible] wealth.

He [illegible] the gray head and kissed [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] and there [illegible] in the [illegible] that [illegible] was not all, for me [illegible] [illegible] loneliness, as to [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] but [illegible] and [illegible] that my mother's [illegible] was very [illegible].

He did not lift his head for several [illegible] and I did not speak. Indeed I [illegible] to hush even my [illegible] at that sacred moment. [illegible] with the mystery which I never will forget about that other world so near to us and yet so [illegible] by insuperable barriers.

But the moment with its eerie [illegible] finally passed, and when my father's eyes again met mine I saw that he had bidden goodby to his memories — I thanked God that they were no longer shadowed by the conviction of my mother's bitterness toward him—and was ready again to meet and cope with his problems and mine.

"You will wear the ring until years from now you pass it on to Faith?"

These were my father's first words, but there was no tenseness in the query. Indeed, it was more a statement than a question, and I carefully minimized the emotion in my own voice as I answered.

"That is a very easy promise to make, father," I told him, "and one which I shall love to keep. Except when I am washing my hands, the ring shall not leave my fingers until I give it to Faith."

A tender, slightly ironic smile touched the corners of his mouth.

"And as she is only a few months old," she said, "we can postpone speculation as to the time of the next change of ownership of this ring—when Faith's daughter is put into her arms. I, of course, shall not—"

He broke off abruptly; changed to a quick query: "Are you sure you are comfortable?"

But even as I gave him the assurance that he had asked, my heart cried out a protest against that unfinished sentence, for I knew that he had meant to say he would not live to see Faith receive that ring as her first benediction of motherhood. My reason told me he was right, but I could not bear even to look [illegible] that dread possibility.

Yet I must betray no emotion. I built myself rigidly to my promise and my father's [illegible] words showed that he, too, was steeling himself to matter-of-fact consideration of the immediate problems confronting me.

"You have not changed your mind about staying [illegible] with Junior and Roderick [illegible]" he asked, with apparent casualness.

"I couldn't want anywhere else," I told him earnestly. "Forgive me for being so [illegible] and for father but I simply cannot help feeling that way."

"Forgive you!" His voice was suddenly eloquent. "You are more [illegible] than I [illegible] understand your feeling perfectly and that is why I am emboldened to ask a boon of you."

"You know that you have only to ask anything in my power to give you, father," I told him.

"I know that, my darling," he said with sudden fervor, [illegible] dropped back into the [illegible] casual tones with which he was [illegible] wearing his words.

"I am particularly wakeful [illegible] night," he said. "It would be physically impossible for me to get [illegible] sleep for hours, and I want you to let me sit in the living room and read until the children get home. Then you can snatch a nap if you do get sleepy with the assurance that I shall be on the watch for the children every second."

SYNOPSIS

Two women go to the Elston hospital in response to an inquiry broadcast by the authorities after a man is picked up on the shore, dazed from his experience in a shipwreck. He has talked in his sleep about "Jimmy Riddell" and about green beads, and emeralds. Nesta Riddell tells the hospital staff the man is her husband, and removes him in her brother Tom's car. Caroline Leigh arrives too late. She believes the man may be her cousin, Jim Randal, an engineer. The nurse explains, and tells her that unless she is sure Jim Randal was on the unlucky boat, she must continue to "hope for the best."

CHAPTER FIVE

More Mystery

"OH—" said Caroline. "And he hadn't any papers or anything of that sort?"

"Not a thing—nothing at all, except the torn-off end of a letter."

"Oh, that's something!" Caroline's voice thrilled. "A bit of a letter? Oh please, what was on it?"

"Nothing but the signature," said the day nurse.

"What? Your affectionate Uncle Alfred, or Aunt Maria, or Cousin Jemima?"

The day nurse felt a little disturbed; she did not know why.

"No—it was only the name."

"What name?"

"Just Caroline."

Caroline put both hands to her head as if she were afraid that her hat would blow off in some violent, intangible wind. She felt giddy with the rush of it. It slapped her face and sang in her ears. She held on to her bright brown curls and opened her eyes as far as they would go.

"Caroline?" she said in her very deepest voice.

"That's all."

"It's quite enough. My dear thing, it's more than enough—because I am Caroline."

"Oh!" said the nurse. Then she said, "Caroline—" in an experimental sort of way. Then she stopped dead.

"Caroline Leigh," said Caroline with a warm rush of words. "I told the girl who let me in, but I expect she forgot—or perhaps she just didn't like the name. lots of people don't. But I am Caroline Leigh, and I wrote to him and signed it just like that—just Caroline. And what do you think of that?"

The nurse did not seem able to think at all. She took refuge behind Nesta Riddell.

"Mrs. Riddell said he was her husband."

"Is her name Caroline?"

"I don't know. I did ask her if she knew anyone by that name?"

"And what did she say?"

"She said she might."

• • •

CAROLINE stopped holding her curls. The wind had blown past her and away. Her right hand took her left hand and pinched it hard.

"She said it was her husband?"

"Yes."

"She ought to know. What was he like? I ought to have asked that straight away—ought I? What was he like?"

The day nurse looked vague. Her mind didn't work as quickly as that, it did not in fact work quickly at all, except on the accustomed lines of routine.

Caroline's eyes sparkled and implored. They were bright, as deep spring water is bright—bright, and brown, and eager.

"Oh, what was he like? Aren't you going to tell me?"

"Well—" said the nurse slowly, "it's not so very easy to say, you know."

"His age, height, weight, color, hair, eyes?" Caroline flung the words at her like a handful of pebbles.

The day nurse caught at the easiest question.

"Well, his hair was what you'd call betwixt and between—nothing very special, you know."

"And his eyes?"

The nurse shook her head.

"I never noticed them—he mostly got them shut."

Caroline picked up the [illegible] pebbles and threw them one [illegible] one. She wanted to shake the nurse, but she restrained herself.

"Age?"

"Oh, he wasn't old."

"About thirty?"

"He might have been."

"Height?"

"Oh, just ordinary."

"Coloring?"

"Well, he was sunburnt—we all noticed that."

"Where has she taken him?"

"Marley," said the nurse. "It's only about eight miles from here and if it will set your mind at rest—"

"Yes—I must see him. I'll go there. Thank you very much. I'll go." She turned and turned back again. "You haven't got that letter of my letter, I suppose?"

• • •

THIS was going too far for the nurse.

"I don't see how it could be your letter," she protested. "Now we'll put it in his pocket till [illegible] it was.

Caroline turned again. The [illegible] ture would have told her every thing at once. Now she [illegible] wait and wait. Eight [illegible] eight hundred were all [illegible] when you want to know [illegible] thing at once.

"Miss Leigh—"

GRAIN VALUES SWING UPWARD

Wheat Finishes Day at Point Near Top of Day's Advance.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, Sept. 23. Swept along on a flood of general buying, wheat advanced today to more than 5 cents a bushel from yesterday's bottom figures.

Unexpected fresh developments in the Washington administration's program to augment business and raise prices led to soaring of grain values both early and late. Latest quotations were at or near the day's top point.

Wheat closed firm, 2¾@3 cents above yesterday's finish; corn 1¾ to 2¾ advanced, oats 1¾@1¾ up, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to a rise of 15 cents.

Wool Market.

By The Associated Press
BOSTON, Sept. 23—A fairly large turnover of wool in the Boston market tended to moderate towards the latter part of the past week. Prices throughout the week have been very strong and some advances were realized. All grades of Ohio and similar bright fleeces including 58s, 60s and lower qualities were offered only in moderate quantities and prices followed an upward trend. Territory and other western grown wools were firm to slightly higher on quite an active movement which ran into a greatly reduced selection of some lines.

SHOOTING SUSPECTS ARRESTED IN MARION

Trainriders Returned to Columbus for Quiz in Wounding of Officer.

Two colored men, arrested here as trainriders, were taken to Columbus today for questioning by Baltimore & Ohio railroad detectives in connection with a shooting last Sunday night near Grove City in which a B. & O. detective was seriously wounded.

The suspects gave their names as Charles Jackson, 20, of Cincinnati, and Joseph Edwards, 21, of New York City. Jackson was arrested last night in a C. & O. box car near the Garden City pike while Edwards was arrested by Erie railroad detectives.

They were taken to Columbus by F. R. Castor, B. & O. railroad police captain and Detective Yutz of the railroad force. They answered descriptions, authorities said, of men who took part in a fight on top of a box car of a moving train.

James E. Towne, 38, of Columbus, a B. & O. detective, was shot near the heart in the fight, which started after he had ordered several trainriders off the train. In the tussle his revolver was wrenched from him and was used by one of the trainriders in wounding Towne. Towne is recovering, officials said.

Both of the suspects arrested here denied any part in the shooting and asserted they were not in that vicinity at the time.
